Information / Description:

The European Transport Conference (ETC) is the annual conference of the Association for European Transport, which attracts policymakers and researchers from across the transport industry.

Attend the 2019 European Transport Conference to hear from a series of industry experts on:

- Autonomous vehicles: looking beyond the technology. What are the implications for accessibility, equity, traffic management, business models?
- Climate change;
- Aviation;
- Big data: its use in, and implications for, network resilience, control centres, cities, climate change, emissions, mobility as a service, smart cities;
- System dynamics representation of complex systems in modelling without detailed data.

The conference will offer three days of networking with international colleagues, thought-provoking panel sessions and the opportunity to engage in free interactive activities across Dublin. In addition, the event will provide access to conference papers, with over 250 papers presented across the conference.

Registration is open, with early booking available until 28 June. For more information, visit the conference website.
