MobiDataLab's 1st Webinar: Fostering a data sharing culture for a better mobility in Europe

Thursday 25 November 2021, 09:30 to 11:00

Past event

Information / Description:

Data sharing in the transport and mobility industries has begun to rise in recent years as stakeholders such as transport authorities, operators and other mobility actors try to address key issues and challenges through collaboration. Fostering such a culture is, thus, instrumental to have a more sustainable and interconnected Europe, based on quality, accessible and usable mobility data.

Join on 25 November 2021 at 9:30-11:00 (CET), online, to learn more about how MobiDataLab is supporting this data sharing culture in Europe and get some key insights on (i) who are the relevant actors for mobility data sharing, how lack of data impacts them and what are their needs (and get to know some proposals on how they can collaborate to address those challenges) and (ii) what is the current status of the mobility data sharing market - which are the companies, products and services already operating in Europe.

MobiDataLab will also be joined by other relevant EU Projects to discuss the challenges and opportunities of data sharing between actors in the transport, mobility, and other sectors.
