

Good practice in stakeholder engagement

Developing sustainable transport solutions, whether involving new infrastructure, services, or communications activities, requires the involvement and engagement of relevant stakeholders to ensure their success. This process goes hand in hand with project management, which comprises all the key activities of ensuring that project runs in a cost-effective, efficient and productive manner.

The GUIDEMAPS project has produced a handbook on good practice on project management and stakeholder engagement. The handbook has three parts. Volume 1 presents relevant concepts and tools for use in these two activities. Volume 2 includes factsheets giving in-depth information on a wide range of different aspects of the two subjects. Finally a collection of good practice examples from sites around Europe gives insight into how these two activities can be successfully combined.

See below to download all parts of the handbook. For more information, visit transport-research.info

Photo by Jag Gill / CC BY-NC-SA

Share on

